Meet JOHN WEBER

By: Gretchen Cathey

Over the last 17 years, the South Hunterdon Regional High School Boys and Girls Varsity basketball teams have had hundreds of games, dozens of players, and eight coaches but there have been two constants; Sweet Caroline, by Neil Diamond, played between the third and fourth period and John Weber, announcer and DJ at all of the home games.

Sitting behind the microphone and his DJ equipment, John's goal is to create an environment evocative of professional arenas like Madison Square Garden, hyping the team and the crowd to give the South Hunterdon Eagles a home court advantage. As spectators walk into the gym, during pre-game warmups and anytime that game is not in play, the boom of music from the Eagles gymnasium is electrifying.

Even as a 1976 South Hunterdon High School graduate, John knew he wanted to get into media. By profession he works in digital media and is also the host of WHY90.9 radio on the "Weekend Edition" program. Both of John's children attended South Hunterdon as well, and despite his youngest graduating five years ago, John continues to be a fixture at games.

One of the reasons John announces year after year, is to "spread the love around." When a younger player makes their first varsity start, John gives them the position of honor, announcing them last in the line up to build their excitement. To him, helping to create that special moment is what it's all about.

At the end of a game, when the lyrics, "I used to rule the world..." start to fill the gym, you know it's been a win for the Eagles. The song, Viva La Vida by Coldplay, is John's favorite because it is only played when it been a great night at the nest!

GO EAGLES!
